The fragmentation of intermediary liability in the UK
Is there a role for Euro-defences following Sun v M-Tech?
A comparative analysis of the inventive step standard in the
EPO, SIPO and USPTO
Reconfiguring trade mark law
From GRUR Int: Novelty of selection inventions: case law on ‘narrow’, ‘sufficiently far removed’ and ‘purposive selection’
From GRUR Int: Article: No escape from being sued abroad
From GRUR Int: Decision: Patenting neural precursor cells obtained from human embryonic stem cells—Neural Precursor Cells II
Contents

Guest Editorial

The German 'Google Tax' law: groovy or greedy?
Eleonora Rosati .................................................. 497

Current Intelligence

Gold Bear wars
Birgit Clark ...................................................... 498

MOST(ly) Pralines—Bundesgerichtshof further clarifies its guidance on keyword advertising
Birgit Clark ...................................................... 499

Land ownership is no excuse for fraudulent trade mark filing
Olivia Bernardeau-Paupe ..................................... 501

Online uploads by the Trade Marks Registry: Indian High Court rejects constructive notice approach
Arpan Banerjee .................................................. 502

'Ugly can be beautiful' but can't be a trade mark: the case of Crocs shoes
Maria Luigia Franceschelli .................................. 504

'DISCOVERY HISTORY' TV channel does not infringe 'THE HISTORY CHANNEL'
Josephine Curry ................................................ 505

The value of evidence from witnesses identified using witness gathering surveys
Rachel Montagnon, Sarah Burke, and Joel Smith .......... 507

Amazon's use of term 'appstore' is not deceptive
Eleonora Rosati .................................................. 511

Reverse engineering and copyright in programming languages and data file formats
Francis Davey .................................................... 512

Liability of data providers and enablers for downloading infringing but undisplayed material
Rachel Montagnon and Joel Smith ......................... 514

Dexilant not an 'innovative drug' under Canada's Food and Drug Regulations
Enir Crowne and Lida Moazzam ............................ 518

Articles

The fragmentation of intermediary liability in the UK
Daithi Mac Sithigh ............................................. 521

Is there a role for Euro-defences following Sun v M-Tech?
Sara Warner ...................................................... 532

A comparative analysis of the inventive step standard in the EPO, SIPO and USPTO
Li Xiang, Dai Lingli, Ouyang Shiwen, and Zhu Ning .... 539

Reconfiguring trade mark law
Matthew J. Elsmore .............................................. 546

Novelty of selection inventions: case law on 'narrow', 'sufficiently far removed' and 'purposive selection'
Thomas M. Leber ................................................ 561

From GRUR Int.

No escape from being sued abroad
Marie Charlotte Reddemann and Rainer Böhm ........... 566

Patenting neural precursor cells obtained from human embryonic stem cells—Neural Precursor Cells II
Bundesgerichtshof (German Federal Court of Justice) .. 567

IP in Review

Africa rising
Marius Schneider .................................................. 572

IP at the crossroads of trade: A survey of contemporary issues?
Kim Barker ......................................................... 573

At long last, a decent analysis of private copying
Charles Oppenheim ............................................. 574

Everything you ever needed to know about trade dress
Iona Harding ...................................................... 576